Controlling the fan

The box "S_OFFDT" is taken from the Program Elements catalog and labeled #Timer_Function. The variable #Timer_Function is started with the input parameter #Engine_On. This variable #Timer_Function with the data type stands for a timer function which is assigned a timer address (for example T1) later on when it is called in OBD. You must select a different timer address for each engine fan pair every time you call the timer function

The timer function is started as a switch-off delay with a timer delay of seconds. You can also assign the time delay as an input parameter with data type S5TIME so that a different follow-on time can be configured for fan in each engine.

The diagram shows a ladder logic network. It starts with a normally open contact labeled #Engine_On. This is followed by a timer block labeled #Timer_Function. The timer block has an input S_OFFDT and an output Q. The output Q is connected to a coil labeled #Fan_On. The timer block also has a reset input R and a data type input BCD.
